Director General's Statement

The year 2021-22 is the period in which the world was limping back to normally from the onslaught of the pandemic. For my team in KILA, which remodelled itself to lead with the pandemic situation by using and developing new ways of communication for development, this was the period of hybrid mode where we had programmes which were physical and critical. Whatever limitations we had with the virtual training programmes were overcame with fare to face programmes.

We launched the EMS Museum on Decentralisation and Local Governance to showcase the history and Local Governments and people's plan campaign in Kerala.

As in the previous year, our proof of partners and collaborators had widened, with new partner causing in Post-covid. Our engagement with the various minutes of the Government of India has been strengthened, especially the Ministry of Panchayati Raj. KILA had tried to be the link between local Governments, academic and research institutions, bilateral and multi-lateral agencies and the community based organisation.

I take pride in our team-the dedicated pool of Academicians, Administrative staff, Support staff, Co-ordinators, Resource persons, Volunteers and Activists. Local self-government and their associations have been our strength. KILA, as you see today, is the result of their continued support and patronage. The Government of Kerala, especially the department of Local Self Governments and the Kerala State Planning Board, have been guiding and supporting us throughout.

Mahila Kisan Saktikaran Pariyojna (MKSP)

The advent of mechanization in agriculture has had a negative impact on women's employment opportunities. However, the centrally sponsored MKSP scheme aims to turn this challenge into an opportunity. In the first phase of the programme, women's labour banks were set up to promote paddy cultivation in Thrissur, Malappuram, and Palakkad districts. Women were provided with skill training in using agricultural machinery and techniques such as mat nursery, transplanting, weeding, and harvesting. This resulted in the revival of paddy cultivation in these areas, and also increased the income and status of skilled working women.

The second phase of the project has been extended to six additional districts- Thiruvananthapuram, Kollam, Alappuzha, Ernakulam, Kozhikode, and Kannur. The scheme now encompasses various employment opportunities in the agriculture sector, including technical training in areas such as coconut climbing, bio-fertilizer manufacturing, drip irrigation, roof water harvesting, and tractor driving. This not only addresses issues in the agriculture sector but also provides new employment opportunities for women.

The MKSP scheme is unique in its extensive skill training approach, which aims to empower women and increase their income levels. It is different from the various training programmes conducted under the leadership of KILA. Overall, the scheme has proven to be a notable project in promoting women's empowerment and enhancing their livelihoods.

KILA Gender School for Local Governance - Gender Responsive Budgeting

As part of our efforts to achieve gender equality and equity in the distribution of financial resources, the budgets of our local self-governments need to become gender budgets. This is crucial to ending gender inequality and ensuring access and control over financial resources. To provide support to the local self-governments in this regard, training was provided at KILA.

Furthermore, in response to requests from about 25 local self-governments, all elected representatives, implementing officers, planning committee and working group representatives were trained in this area. This training was designed to help these representatives understand the importance of gender budgets and how to implement them effectively.

Gender Status Study

To improve the quality of life for all individuals living and working within the limits of local self-government institutions, it is essential to understand the current status of various genders, including those who identify as LGBTIQA. By conducting a gender status study, local self-governments can identify what schemes, programmes, and interventions are needed to support these individuals.

Although some local self-governments have conducted women's status studies, gender status studies are rare, and existing studies often remain as documents without proper analysis. This is due to the lack of a structured learning process and the absence of technical/academic support required for analysis. Therefore, it is crucial to address these shortcomings.

In response to this need, KILA has decided to provide support for Gender Status Studies to give direction to local self-governing bodies in this area. To prepare for the training, four workshops were conducted to develop the required materials and training module. Starting in May, training for local self-government institutions will commence to build capacity and facilitate the implementation of gender status studies, ultimately improving the quality of life for all individuals within the local self-government institutions.

The tapper labour market is skewed, with very low female and younger labor participation. Therefore it is important to promote formation of self help groups (SHGs), as activity group of marginal and resource poor farmers and women for community participation and more inclusive development in rubber tapping and processing sector.

GENDER SCHOOL FOR LOCALGOVERNANCE

Let's lead the country together - Study circle for women chairpersons

As a first step towards providing capacity building to the newly elected women members of local self-government institutions, training was held for women mayors of corporations, municipalities, and chairpersons of three-tier Panchayati Raj institutions. The training program, titled "Let's lead the country together- Study circle for women chairpersons," began on January 29, 2021, and was conducted in three centers: KILA Thrissur, Sargalaya Arts and Crafts Village in Kozhikode, and Christ University Animation Centre in Kottayam. The training was provided to 12 batches, and 90% of women chairpersons from all districts participated in the training. The training was completed on February 10, 2021.

Capacity Building Programme for Women Elected Representatives

To provide leadership for development activities in self-government institutions and enhance the leadership capabilities of women representatives in all Grama Panchayats, a training program called the "Women's Representative Development Program" was conducted. The training program was held from September 17th to November 10th, 2021, and covered various topics, including capacity building, gender justice, visibility, information technology and exchange, the importance of yoga and participation, budgeting, monitoring, and implementation, and various measures for gender justice. The training was conducted online in 37 batches, and 9,021 women representatives participated. Six workshops and one training-of-trainers were conducted to develop the necessary modules for the training.

Gender Responsive Budgeting

To ensure gender equality and justice in the distribution of wealth, control, and accessibility of resources in financial transactions, our self-governing institutions have included activities related to gender-sensitive budgeting in their budgets. In order to transform our budgets to be more gender-sensitive, KILA will provide assistance and support to those interested in shaping this year's budget. All self-government institutions have been instructed to prioritize and pay necessary attention to gender-sensitive budgeting. About 50% of local self-government institutions have agreed to take up this proposal.

Given the importance, priority, and relevance of gender-sensitive budgeting to budgeting and constitutional principles, elected representatives, employees, and concerned workers were trained in 'Gender Sensitive Budgeting in Local Bodies'. The training, which started on December 3, 2021, and concluded on December 28, was conducted in six batches, with a total of 264 participants, including elected representatives and officials. Six workshops and two training of trainers were also held to prepare the module.

As part of support to the local self-government institutions, training was also provided to all elected representatives, implementing officers, DPC, and working group representatives in 17 local self-government institutions at the panchayat level, as requested.

Diploma in Gender and Local Governance

All activities carried out in Kerala through the self-government system are required to include gender awareness across all sectors. To achieve this goal, a six-month diploma course on gender and local governance was launched for representatives in January. The course provides theoretical perspectives and practical experiences to create a critical understanding of how every system can be made gender-friendly. Due to the aftermath of Covid-19, classes were conducted online via an e-learning platform. The final classes of the course were held on November 2 and 3, 2021, in various locations.

Training of Community Women Facilitators

To facilitate coordination of gender sector activities, Community Facilitators have been appointed in local self-government institutions. They received training on various aspects including the inclusion and role of women in the activities of local self-government institutions, women component plan, strengthening of jagratha samithies, laws and systems meant for women, and the responsibilities of community women facilitators. This training proved instrumental in coordinating the activities of the gender sector and emphasizing the importance of women in the women component plan. As a result, women can achieve higher positions and improve their social and economic status. In March 2021, 34 persons participated in the training.

Gender Status Study

A workshop was held on March 3, 2022, in order to prepare concept notes, project models, questionnaires, and other materials for a study that aims to improve the living standards of women and children. The study seeks to understand the current situation and position of women and children, including their social status, positions, and the reasons for their conditions. Its goal is to identify solutions and approaches to address their problems and needs, particularly those of women in the region. This grassroots effort aims to raise awareness and find solutions to gender-related issues, including those affecting all genders, by conducting research that identifies specific issues and provides viable solutions to address them.

Local Self Government Institutions and Kudumbashree

A decision had been made to provide training to the chairpersons of local self-government institutions and Kudumbashree CDS Chairpersons. The objective of this training was to discuss the possibility of coordinated working between local self-government institutions and Kudumbashree, the problems and challenges faced by Kudumbashree, and possible solutions. To prepare the training module, a workshop was held in March 2022.
